Object:	Advertisement for the feature 'Friedemann Bach'
Description:	The frameless leaflet consists of a collage of four photographs and shows figures in courtly dresses of the eighteenth century. In the forefront a woman who wears a bright wig and a shiny long dress with neckline. In the background and above her a man in a black tailcoat also wearing a wig. Behind him the face of an elder man, below a group of applauding people.
Comment:	The actor in the tailcoat (Gustav Gründgens) played Wilhelm Friedemann Bach (1710–1784), the eldest son of Johann Sebastian Bach. The film was directed by Traugott Müller and released in 1941.
